

Eddie Speir brings many years of business experience and leadership to the table. In 1993 he founded a mortgage software company that was named to INC 500's fastest growing private companies an astonishing 4 times. After he sold the company, he founded a private Christian school specializing in mentorship and athletics. During this time, Eddie also cultivated a culture of entrepreneurship and innovation helping to create and foster many businesses within the local community including SureMed, a medical company devoted to fighting the opioid crisis in America. Eddie also produced the movie Ragamuffin, a compelling biography about the life and career of Christian singer and song writer Rich Mullins.

Recently, Eddie was appointed by Governor Ron DeSantis to the board of trustees at New College of Florida to battle against the woke ideological agenda that has captured many academic institutions in Florida and throughout the country. In Eddie's time at this position, he acted quickly and decisively to bring about the change in leadership and culture that the university desperately needed. With his extensive leadership experience in a wide array of fields, Eddie knows what it takes to fight and win against corrupt politicians and the globalist elite.
